BIBI Thought for the Week:

"We believe that the deaf child has the right to acquire a native fluency in language, the right to accessibility to all the skills and experiences and learning that we take for granted for hearing children, and the right to demonstrate the full rich potential we know is there. Toward that end, we are retooling, rethinking, reallocating, refocusing, rebuilding."

Gerald Johnson, Superintendent, Kansas School for the Deaf

1st Annual Elementary AEP Olympics Held

ISD's Elementary AEP students participated in the 1st Annual Elementary AEP Olympics on Friday, December 11th, 1992. Each student attempted sixteen different stations and was awarded a gold medal, presented by ISD Superintendent Eddy Laird.

The interaction between the students and ISD staff members who manned the stations was remarkable. Jumping rope, skipping and tumbling was often done by teachers and students together. All the participants enjoyed themselves. The students were very proud of their gold medals.

After the games, staff and students together retired to Willard Cafeteria to enjoy lunch and a special cake together. Thanks and congratulations to all who were involved.

Health Facts - From the Files of ISD's Health Center

Head Injuries

Normally injury to the head can be assumed to be insignificant when the initial blow to the head is not followed by unconsciousness. The child can usually be watched at home without special medical treatment. Initial treatment for a child at ISD includes bringing the child to the Health Center, evaluating the head for swelling, lacerations, or bruising. Then the eyes are examined - by briefly flashing a light in the eyes Health Center staff check to ensure that the pupils are of equal size and react to light. (This procedure, called a "Neuro Check", is used to monitor the child's progress for the next 24 hours.) Ice is applied to the injured area to reduce swelling and relieve pain. Injured persons are checked for symptoms including severe headache, excessive drowsiness, nausea, vomiting, double or blurred vision, loss of coordination, convulsions, bleeding or discharge from ears, nose or mouth, or unusual behavior (confusion, unusual behavior). Presence of these symptoms may indicate a more serious injury and should be evaluated by a physician.

Information on the 1993 applications for NASA workshops has arrived. These workshops give outstanding educators the chance to personally experience NASA's state-of-the-art research and development activities. Selected teachers spend two weeks at a NASA center observing specialists at work and learning about the latest technology. Participants are given the opportunity to update their knowledge and to develop new interdisciplinary and team-teaching strategies.

Educators selected receive a two week workshop at a NASA center, travel expenses, housing and meals, three graduate credit hours from Oklahoma State University, national recognition, and continued contact with other participants through The Orbit newsletter and alumni activities.

Applicants must be U.S. citizens, teach full time, and have taught a minimum of five years. Two separate programs are offered.

NEWMAST applicants must teach mathematics, science or technology in grades 7 - 12.

NEWEST applicants must teach elementary school (grades K - 6).

Applicants must submit information including current assignment, formal education, certification, teaching experience and professional activities. ISD's own Teresa Huckleberry, who attended a NASA workshop in 1988,says it was, without question, the most interesting and motivating educational experience of her career. Teresa encourages interested ISD staffers to contact her for a personal view of the program.
